Instructive Tour Taken By Steuben County Dairymen

Farm Bureau sponsors interesting trip from all farmers —Model dairies and fields inspected in northern part of county—Cornell experts deliver talks and answer questions—Tour one of most worthwhile for over 250 farmers and families.

Progressive farmers of Steuben County made up a group of over 200 which took the annual Farm Bureau tour of successful farms in the northern part of the county Friday. Chief speakers on the tour were Prof. G. H. Serviss, Cornell crop expert and Prof. S. J. Brownell who spoke on "breeding" and demonstrated methods of throwing a bull for purposes of trimming. Lynn Bookout, assistant farm agent, was in charge of details.

Addison and vicinity farmers on the tour were Floyd Beattie, Thomas Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kane, Frank B. Finnerty of the high school agriculture department, Leon Andrews, Robert Drake, tester for the Dairy Herd Improvement Association, Ralph Decker, Ralph Hand, Sheldon Stewart, Charles Stewart, Walter Perkins and C. E. Rounds. Woodhull people on the tour were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carpenter and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Towsley and son William, George Woodward, Edgar Ackerman, Raulty Holden and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Beatty.

Kurtz Farm

The tour started at the farm of Vincent Kurtz, Loon Lake road, Cohocton. A herd of 12 purebred Holstein cows were viewed. These cows produced 11,971 pounds of milk and 418.7 pounds of butterfat each last year at an average cost of 76 cents per 100 pounds of milk. Mr. Kurtz when questioned as to the use of a milking machine said he saw no ill effects from such use.

Seeding Failures

Prof Serviss then talked on "What to do about seeding failure". He pointed out that sweet clover is a biannual but cannot be grown on sour soil but can be used where lime has been applied. For supplemental pasture it is a good thing. He continued, "If too high an acidity prevails use Sudan grass; which may be planted late in May or early in June at 30 pounds to the acre.

Cheap Feed

"This can be grazed from six to seven weeks after planting and makes good silage also. A good permanent pasture is the cheapest source of nutrients. Cows will harvest it and you don't have to. In placing nitrates on timothy you will find by placing 200 pounds to the acre you will get a two-ton increase in production. It should be put on before growth or as soon as growth starts.

"Mr. Kurtz has planted Manchu soybeans in his corn. You will notice he has used Cornell Hybrid corn number 293. It was mixed at the ratio of eight quarts of corn to ten of beans in the planter. Cayugas are the only baan which should not be grown in a cornfield."

Those present asked Mr. Kurtz several questions relative to his field of 25 acres of potatoes. Prof. Serviss took the group to the four-acre clover field, which had been eaten by the herd cows and explained uses of and the plowing under of clover.

Most of the group had picnic lunches and adjournment was made for lunch at the Hidden Grove Inn. Here buttermilk was provided by Edward Wetmiller and sweet milk through Herbert Seeley and the Dairymen's League.

A very informal program was held in the grove in the rear of the Inn with Lynn Bookout and William

Autogyro Flies Over Addison Friday

Maybe Jim Farley is going to start a commuting postal service from Hornell to Corning via Addison. This observation is made after seeing one of those autogyro planes flying over Addison, east bound, about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. He started a shuttle postal service from the Philadelphia Post Office to the Camden Airport or some such place, and why not one in the Canisteo Valley.

It would be interesting to see these queer contraptions built for comfort and easy landing, flying hourly or so over the Canisteo Valley. And people in the vicinity could set their watches by the regularity of the flights.

Then if a person had something to send in a hurry, well maybe you could hang out some sort of signal and a flyer could land in your garden patch and pick up your package for delivery. Don't say "it can't happen here" for remember what was said about the Hammondsport experiences of the Curtis boys.

Apgars Conclude 3100 Mile Trip Through South

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Apgar and daughter Madeleine and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Apgar of Galeton have returned to their home after a most interesting 3,150-mile trip through the deep south. They left Addison July 22 and returned August 3 and in that time passed through much of the historic and scenic territory marking the memories of the Civil War.

One of the first stops on the trip was at Gettysburg and from there over the recently opened Skyline Drive to the Smoky Mountains 3,600 feet above sea level, where from time to time traveling was [illegible] in the clouds and dampness prevailed many times.

[illegible] into Chattanooga and to the [illegible] battle grounds at Lookout [illegible] and Seminary Ridge and [illegible] Alabama to Fort McLean. There memb[illegible]ode in the new ar[illegible] preparations bei[illegible]ch a[illegible] [illegible] show the nation's war strength.

The tourists then came east to Florida, traveling south through central Florida and then north along the ocean drive to the old city in America, St. Augustine. The northern trip was along the eastern seaboard to Arlington, Mount Vernon, Annapolis and Washington.

The trip had been planned for several weeks and while the group did not make planned stops, they rolled along leisurely and returned to Addison with a firm belief in "see America First".

Subscription Workers Bunched in Speedy Race to Capture Grand Prize

Several fast workers virtually tied for lead honors— Friends rally to support of favorites and community interest waxing high as big drive booms along under popular approval—Only two days left to earn special points and extra cash—Work while points count most.

The published count today finds Douglas Aldrich, Miss Betty Jane Sanford, Mrs. Elsie Buck and Mrs. Margaret Harris all in warm competition for the leadership, with Douglas Aldrich topping the list by a slim margin.

The above workers are going at a fast and furious pace with so few points separating them that it would be merely a wild guess as to who will be leading in the next count. Several workers gained a point or two while others were forced down in the standing, but if we are any judges of live wires, we predict a rapid comeback of these popular workers. There are several workers in the lineup that we would advise the leaders to keep an eye on, as they will have the backing of large communities and scores of friends and we feel sure that they will be real contenders for the big prizes. The workers' standing in this issue tells the rest of the story. Our advice to the leaders is not to slow up for a minute, who knows but what one of the workers at the bottom of the list may be leading in the next count.

NOW ALTOGETHER! MAKE EVERY MINUTE COUNT. The home runs you made yesterday will not win today's ball game.

How Do They Do It?

How do they do it, you ask? Hustling. That's the answer, and we pause long enough to remark that anyone who out-hustles this bunch of livewires will have to step on the gas from now on to the finish.

The End Is Not Yet

Don't rush away with the idea that the campaign is all over but the shouting. The drive is yet young, over two weeks to go and the matter of leadership in the early hunts means nothing more than holder of the top position today considered one of the potenprize winners at close of the campaign. There is [illegible] on the top position—that being a very slippery place indeed and the leader today may slip tomorrow and be succeeded by an aggressive competitor. SO WATCH YOUR STEP AND DON'T SLIP.

Two More Working Days For Extra Points

There are but two more working days to earn the extra points, 5,000 extra points for each dollar's worth of subscriptions turned in up to and including Friday, August 18. This includes both old and new subscriptions. This will be the last special points offer during the campaign. Therefore don't for a minute lose sight of the importance of this vital week in the campaign. Two days, two days only to strike the blow that makes it possible to win either the First Grand Prize of $250 or the second Grand Prize of $200. There are three more cash prizes $150, 100, $50, and last but not least a 20 per cent commission to all non-prize winners. Of course the campaign does not close two days hence, but it does mean that these two days will have a lot to do in winning the top prizes. The supreme test is at hand. Workers are fully aware of the closeness of the race so far and are in touch with every phase of the situation and should be laying their plans accordingly.

Friends Boosting Favorites

Workers are receiving warm support from their friends and well wishers. One obstacle the workers seem to be meeting with, however, is the disposition of friends to wait until the last moment before helping with their subscription. This tends to hurt the chances of the worker, for it keeps them from a place higher up in the standings and in some instances influences others to withhold their support and at the same time causing them to cover the same territory several times. Putting them off hurts like blue blazes. Now, friends, if you have promised a subscription for two or five years, remember that now is the time to make good, while the extra points are in effect. They end Friday, August 18. The difference in points now and after that date may have everything to do with the success of your favorite in the race. ACT NOW WHILE YOUR SUPPORT [illegible] MOST.

THIS IS [illegible] WEEK

As this is CASH WEEK, which ends Friday evening, August 18th, a great opportunity is offered the workers to earn some extra cash and at the same time add big figures to their point totals. The hustlers are rounding up every available subscription in order to lead in this event. See offer of special cash prizes in advertisement of this week's Advertiser-Sentinel.

MacDowell Moves Funeral Home to Mayer House

The S. D. MacDowell funeral home has been moved from the store location on Main street to the house of Guy Mayer, Front street. The change has been completed, but the funeral home will still be known as the S. D. MacDowell funeral home. This change is made after the home had been over 50 years in its Main St. location. As now set up the store has more room for work space and for the display of furniture and household furnishings.

The east side of the Mayer house has been renovated and changed to accommodate the funeral parlors. Four downstairs rooms have been fitted up with furnishings for funeral parlors and work shop. Three front rooms have been fitted as rooms for waiting and for the caskets in which deceased persons are kept pending burial. Relatives and friends have the use of two nicely furnished front rooms.

The rooms are furnished in homey fashion with conservative furniture and rugs and lighting systems. Caskets are on display in an upper room.

Mr. Mayer, who has been with S D. MacDowell for the past 22 years will continue as undertaker and embalmer. He is licensed by the State of New York Regents Department after having completed a course of study at Simmons Undertaking School in Syracuse. He was graduated there in 1927 and has been doing embalming and undertaking work since that time.

Free Seed for Drouth Aid Attracts Over 200 Farmers Here

Agricultural conservation plan gives farmers seed to replace that killed by dry weather—R. H. Stowell and Leon Andrews in charge of local signers for Towns of Addison, Tuscarora, Jasper and Woodhull—Time to be extended to Saturday.

Over 200 farmers of Addison and vicinity have taken advantage of the Government's free seed for pastures for next year according to R. H. Stowell and Leon Andrews, who have been in charge of the Agriculture Conservation Program signing in Addison.

The Addison signing includes farms in the towns of Addison, Woodhull, Jasper and Tuscarora. The Farm Bureau office sent form letters to farmers throughout the County. Cards were sent to short course students by Frank Finnerty of the Agriculture Department of the high school and the newspapers of the county carried front page stories on the conservation program which was inaugurated in a hurry owing to the drought striking the area and killing off feed grasses for next year.

Every farmer in the county is eligible to receive free seed according to Leonard Drake, Steuben County chief supervisor for the Agriculture Conservation Program. They can have seed at a cost not to exceed one half of the potential soil building seed they would have been eligible for last spring under the soil conservation program.

As the program is working out, a farmer makes application for free seed based on what he lost owing to drought. Th amount is computed on the bais of the one-half of total eligible crop and he is given a certificate to take to his seed dealer for the seed dealer, who in turn is paid by the Federal Government under the program.

So many farmers have taken advantage of the program, in signing up that additional time may be alloted to permit others to sign. Lack of enough forms prevented some offices from completing their records early in the week. Seedings must be planted by September 10.

Four seed allowances are being made in four classifications. The first permits of 12 pounds of alfalfa per acre, plan two permits of 8 pounds of alfalfa and seven pounds of timothy, plan three permits of six pounds of alfalfa, four pounds of alsike and six pounds of timothy per acre and plan four permits six pounds of alsike, six pounds of timothy and three pounds of red top. Most of the farmers in this vicinity are choosing type four feeling they will receive greater yield and that the seed will cover a grater acreage.

Ad Club Members at Keuka for Summer Outing

Seventy members of the Advertising Club and their wives, friends and guests spent an enjoyable afternoon Wednesday on a tour of the Taylor Winery, Hammondsport and afterward spent the evening at the cottage of Edwin C. Smith on Keuka Lake, where a picnic luncheon was served. After the winery tour members engaged in an impromptu program which included games, boating, swimming, singing, stories and other activities arranged under the direction of Bligh Chatfield and Dr. Stuart Bean, committeemen appointed by President Milton H. Crane on arrangements for the affair.

Life Preserver Added to Local Safety Outfit

An example of cooperation thoughtfulness and community spirit has been shown here during the past few months relative to the securing of safety devices for first aid work in the community. Various organizations, agencies and individuals have all cooperated to make possible some of the apparatus which Addison has such as stretcher, inhalator, first aid kit all in the telephone office and now the latest addition in the form of a life preserver which will be placed in a convenient place for the use of everyone in the village in case of a drowning in the Canisteo River.

Dr. Amos G. Stiker, who successfully promoted the Red Cross First Aid class here last year for the American Legion is sponsor of this plan. He secured the cooperation of Elmer Bovee representing the Red Cross and American Legion and Mrs. Winfield S. Long, president of the Women's Civic Society, who purchased the inhalator through a series of parties.

Through the fine cooperation of these people and the organizations they represent, the life preserver will be placed in a spot near the bridge for quick use and will be available 24 hours a day.

Welles Hose Frolic at Keuka Outing

John B. Davis was voted the champion meat eater and Ted Laffkas is the champion corn eater of the Welles Hose Company by virtue of a vote taken at the outing held Sunday, August 13, 1939 for members and their wives and families at Evergay Cottage, Keuka Lake. Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Handy were host and hostess to the group.

Swimming, boating, quoits and many other activities were enjoyed by the group. President Francis Hill presided at an informal program. There were 37 present to participate in the voting and Walter Aldrich was voted champion bean eater of the group for the dinner.

"Dix" Curtis rigged up a dummy of Jiggs, the comic strip character and women of the group took turns throwing rolling pins at it and Mrs. George Freeman hit it more times than any woman present. Mrs. Ruth Ann Davis was in second place in the competition.

Pete Laffkas ate so much in the opinion of those present that he put the fire out. He was not a one-food champion, taking everything in his stride.

In the evening a beach fire was lighted and songs and stories told. Those who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. John B. Davis and daughter Joan, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Curtis and daughter Sally, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Laffkas and daughter Martha, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Laffkas and son, Harry Jr., Miss Rula Laffkas, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hill and niece Jeanne Heine of Battle Creek, Mich., Miss Muriel and Wesley Smith, Miss Janet Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Wyckoff Sherwood and son Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Mose, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Aldrich and son Douglas, Miss Dorothy Napier of Rochester, Mr. and Mrs. E. JAPS DESERVE STERN MEASURES

Col. George Drew, leader of the Conservative party in the Ontario Provincial Legislature has proposed a retaliatory move against Japan which the Nipponese have probably not taken into consideration in their efforts to dislodge British subjects and business interests from China. In a speech before the Erie County Farm Bureau Col. Drew proposed that Japanese subjects be ousted from Canada in retaliation for the anti-British agitation the Japs have stirred up in China.

Col. Drew said:

"Japan is one of the aggressors today. Canadian citizens have been killed by Japanese bombers. Yet we have a situation here where thousands of Japanese farmers are taking jobs away from Canadian farmers, a situation which exists also in the fishing and canning industries in the west.

"The Japs have announced they do not want Britishers in the Orient and are forcing them to leave parts of China. My point is that if Japan has adopted a doctrine of hatred for the British people we have a right and duty to ask those Japanese who came into Canada under an agreement of friendship between the two countries to leave".

What Col. Drew said about Japanese in Canada is equally true of Japs in this country. Since Admiral Perry opened trade with the Island Nation through his visit with the American fleet this country has extended every courtesy to the Japanese which any race could ask. Thousands of Japs have settled on the west coastal states and entered into farming and fishing in competition with American citizens. Only a native of California can tell you how severe is that competition between white farmers and the Jap tiller of the soil on the coast.

Briefly though, the Japanese almost invariably have large families and their women and children work long hours in the fields enabling the Jap farmers to produce truck crops and fruits at a fraction of the cost of whites. In many sections of California large areas have been almost entirely taken over by the Japs who absolutely dominate the life of the region they enter. They are an incompatible race and once they have bought up the bulk of the land in a section whites are compelled to pull out by the fierce nature of this oriental competition.

Americans as a rule abhor any recourse to spite measures against any people which could be characterized as discriminatory. Our doors have for the most part been wide open to all races and creeds. Of late years since our public lands were all taken up it has been necessary to place limitations upon the number of aliens we allow to enter the country. Doubtless the doors should have been pulled together earlier than they were, for a more selective method of taking new blood into the country is necessary to keep the prolific races from thinning the Anglo-Saxon blood which should always predominate in America. Americans do not want to be unfriendly, but the Japanese ruling party has served unequivocal notice upon the world that they intend to be a race of conquerors. Peace is always endangered when any race comes to believe their destiny must be fulfilled in spite of the rights of any other people.

Japan's emboldened attitude in China is daily endangering the peace of the world. From direct outrages such as the bombing of the American boat Panay, the Japs have turned to such indirect assaults upon Americans as the inciting of Chinese race riots against our property and citizens. Such acts invariably lead to incidents which might easily plunge us into war. Japan must be brought speedily to the realization we can take measures short of war which, still would throttle the ambition of Nipponese for world conquest.

When President Roosevelt threatened to break off the Japanese treaty which allows the Japs the right to buy munitions here the Islanders were dealt a body blow. If they still persist in trying to drive us out of the Orient the next best move would be to threaten banishment of all Japanese aliens from our shores.

POLITICS IN THE FUTURE

Just what effect will the work of the closed session of Congress have on parties and on the country? That question is being asked now in many quarters. It is having not a few answers. Not many of these latter, however, are based on cold, calm reasoning; most of them are built on wishful thinking.

Mr. Roosevelt, for an instance, is represented as believing that Congress in 1940 will approve the New Deal plans rejected in 1939. That means, of course, that he expects that in the ensuing months there will be a reversal throughout the country of recorded public disapproval of excessive government spending as a means of recovery. It means that he believes the people will shut their eyes to the plain fact that government spending has accomplished nothing in a revival of industrial enterprise.

There is also a hint that the President is enclined to undertake another party purge. Senator Pepper's outburst against those Democrats in Congress whose "unholy alliance" with other forces brought about a wrecking of Administration plans is taken as indicating the likelihood of another program of reprisals. In view of the result of the earlier attempted party purge, this movement does not commend itself to political common sense. Mr. Roosevelt's own present attitude seems to be one of conciliation, or at least of acceptance. But, then, Mr. Roosevelt is a man of known persistence who harbors resentments and does not easily forgive. That makes it somewhat difficult to make predictions, even if one were inclined to do so.

While it is true that for the time being at least, the President has lost control of his party, as that party is represented in Congress, it cannot safely be assumed that the break is beyond repair. This could be brought about by one of two things: a reversal of present public dissatisfaction with Administration policies, as shown by result of congressional elections of last year, or by a softening of those policies by the President. This, of course, should be supplemented by a declaration from Mr. Roosevelt on the third-term issue; also by a lifting of Administration pressure against revision of the Wagner labor act and a consent to modification of other controversial measures, including removal of that fantastic social security backlog whose value so far has been merely to provide the Administration with a source of ready money that has been used for current expenses and which can be replaced only by additional taxation.

Congress meets again for its second session in January. The hope of the Administration, of course, is that in the meantime the people will forget that the session just closed gave the Administration thirteen billion to spend, the greatest amount ever appropriated by a peacetime session; and that they will also forget that all the billions which have been spent since 1933 have not lessened unemployment, a failure which should prove beyond all doubt the futility of the political and economic policies put forth by the New Deal.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

FRESH EGGS VERSUS VISION

What a change a few decades make in our national thoughts, habits and activities! Take the poultry industry, for instance. When the writer was in short pants (he still lacks several turns of the earth on its axis before he's a hundred) the job of taking care of the chickens was considered beneath the dignity of most farmers. It was a job for the farm wife to do and for the [illegible] it occasioned her the lord of the manor generously allowed his spouse to have the [illegible] which was left after the trade had been made at the grocery for whatever cloth had been needed for clothing. [illegible] the children's feet off the ground when the latter was covered with snow.

Yes, indeed, the poultry business used to be rather scorned by most dirt farmers, but now look at it! Pin money from eggs has grown up. The World's Poultry Congress and Exposition has come to our shores for the first time, and America becomes conscious that the job which once was the scored task of the farm house-wife has grown into a one and one-quarter billion dollar business. Farmers and farm leaders from this locality have been among the thousands who attended this world-wide event which attracted visitors from all of the 48 states and from fifty foreign countries. Truly has the hen grown up and taken unto herself an importance litttle dreamed of a few years ago.

The subject of the old basket of eggs so often carried to the groceries of rural America to be "traded" for sugar, coffee, salt and other necessities of an era when luxuries were few, holds food for much thought. What changes have taken place in the eating habits of a nation over a period of forty years? In those old days every egg which found its way to a city table was eyed with merited suspicion. Today "fresh" eggs are really that and our population both city and country has adopted the custom of using poultry products daily.

What has happened in the case of the eggs (no pun intended) can well happen to dozens of products of the farm and in the not too distant future. Soybeans have been turned into mastics that find new uses every day. Cornstalks and straw have been converted into newsprint paper, milk into buttons and a hundred other articles. Other new uses for products of the farm will likely be uncovered any day as science probes into the complex structure of various plants.

Those who see no future for agriculture in the future are those who can see no hope for the future of the human race. Few would have been brash enough forty years ago to say that the poultry business could develop into a billion and a quarter affair, but it happened, because poultry men found a way to take strictly fresh eggs to all tables in the nation. And people will buy the things they really want, if they can get them. Fruits and vegetables have also come into far wider use in recent years since ways have been found to transport them to those who desired them. All progress has sprung from someone's vision for improvement. To say there is no more future in this land is to claim that 130 million Americans have stopped dreaming dreams of things they want.

Those who easily give up all hope may think progress has stopped in this land but most human beings still pin their faith upon something better to come, and hope builds castles more real than those of air.

This Week in Washington

—The first session of the 76th Congress adjourned with two events attesting further spread of anti-New Deal sentiment among Senators and Representatives alike.

The President's bill to authorize the borrowing of 3¾ billions of the securities of Government-controlled corporations and agencies, for the purpose of lending the funds for a wide variety of purposes in the effort to stimulate business, was killed by the refusal of a coalition of Republicans and Conservative Democrats to permit its consideration by the House, even after the Senate had agreed upon the measure in a modified form, involving only about half as much money as the President had asked for.

Another important measure behind which all the forces of the Administration lined up against the opposition, met the same fate. That was the bill to double the borrowing and lending powers of the U. S. Housing Administration, engaged in so-called "slum-clearance" projects of building low-rent homes for the poor.

A combination of motives entered into this final revolt against the Administration. There was a genuine feeling on the part of economy-minded members of both Houses that the time had come to stop Government spending-for-recovery.

Wide-spread Revolt

There was an even more wide-spread revolt against the idea of increasing the national debt by borrowing in the name of corporations or agencies, whose debt would not be included in the official Public Debt statements, on the theory that the proceeds of their lending would be used to finance self-liquidating projects.

Besides economic objections to the President's program, further opposition was inspired by objections to the President's policies in general.

There was also an element of personal revenge on the part of certain Democratic Senators and Representatives who were the object of the Presidential enmity in last year's elections, and who survived his so-called "purge" of the party leadership.

All those things combined with previous actions of the Congress to make the ending of this session a fairly complete defeat of the New Deal.

The way is now cleared for consideration of the prospects for the 1940 Presidential election, and that is what will engage the whole attention of official Washington and of the Senators and members back in their home states from now on. The battle for delegates to the nominating conventions of both major parties is already beginning.

Fear Roosevelt

It can be set down as a certainty that the man whom all Republicans fear most as the Democratic candidate is President Roosevelt himself. If he does decide to break the precedent first formulated by the founders of his own party, and run for a third term, it is conceded that he will be the hardest man for the opposition to beat.

There are careful observers, professing to be able to read the political signs, who hold that the President is merely waiting until the time is right to announce that he will not be a candidate to succeed himself. Such tactics, it is pointed out, would prevent too great concentration of delegates behind any other individual who might be distasteful to the President, and so increase his chance of having a candidate of his own choice named, in the last-minute confusion just before the convention.

The candidate who is now coming to be regarded as the President's choice is Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt. He is the only Democrat with any considerable vote-getting ability who might have Mr. Roosevelt's blessing. In actual political strength at the moment, Vice-President Garner is away out in the lead, on the Democratic side.

On the Republican side, the outstanding candidate of the moment is Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, son of former President Taft. The Ohio primaries come among the earliest of any of the states, and the Hamilton County (Cincinnati) Republican Committee has already begun its campaign to win the primaries for its fellow-citizen, Senator Taft. It couldn't go ahead without the Senator's written consent, and he gave it in a strong statement attacking the Administration and the New Deal, adding that the task which lies ahead of the next president is so great that no sensible man could be eager to assume it.

Dewey Strong

None of the other potential Republican candidates has announced so far. A strong organization is being built up around Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and Washington hears that something in the nature of a "brain trust" of economists and political advisers is at work preparing a series of public speeches which Mr. Dewey will make in the Fall, to put his personal political philosophy on record.

Very far from being in the background is Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, with probably more practical politicians of his own party working for him than for any other Republican.

There is a perceptible underswell of sentiment for Governor Saltonstall of Massachusetts. Governor Bricker of Ohio must not be overlooked. He is believed to be receptive and is known to be a good campaigner. For the first time since 1928, Republicans believe and Washington observers agree with them, the party has at least an even change of winning in 1940. Otherwise there would not be so many candidates for the driver's seat.

Some observers here think they see signs of a tide of public sentiment running in Mr. Hoover's direction.

Attorney Hugh Varn Speaks to Dairymen's League Picnickers

Addison speaker gives history of American farmer unions and points out need for strength—Shows how farmers have organized in the past—Herbert Seeley in charge of meeting attended by dairymen and families from New York and Pennsylvania.

Hundreds of Milk producers and Dairymen's League members and their families attended an annual picnic in Denison Park Thursday. Herbert Seeley, director for this area was in charge of arrangements and he was assisted by league officers from various parts of the area. All plants in the district were represented.

The feature of the program was a talk by Attorney Hugh A. Varn of Addison, candidate for Republican assembly nomination on "Strength Through Union", Attorney Varn said in part:

"The fun and frolic of this picnic should not be impaired by bearing too prominently on the woes and troubles of the farmers. Conditions have been bad for the farmer but there is solace in realizing that others have not fared much better. In these times of adversity, there is a great encouragement in knowing that great progress has been made in farm organization. In times past it has been said that as individuals you are the strongest race in the Nation but that you were unable to organize. It is true that the farmer, by the very nature of his existence, is more individually concerned in minding his own particular business than in organizing. Working fourteen hours a day leaves little time for developing organizations and with the constant struggle against the weather, the farmer is apt to think that he has no other enemy. History is full of precedent, however, proving that the farmer can organize. Who dares to say that farmers were not organized at Lexington and Concord. It was an organization of farmers standing shoulder to shoulder, armed with the implements of their trade that withstood the assaults of the British Red Coats as they stormed up Bunker Hill. And later, it was an organization of farmers who sat at the Memorial Conference and drafted the Declaration of Independence. The voice of the farmer was heard in the Convention Hall when our Constitution was later drafted, but perhaps the proudest boast of all is that the First President and Father of Our Country was a farmer.

"The varied interests and different forms of agriculture present an obstacle to a nation-wide farm organization. The interests of the fruit farmer in California, the grain farmer in the West, the cotton farmer in the South and the dairy farmer of the Northwest do not present a picture of harmony. Yet, there are general principles upon which all must agree. The simple economic law of supply and demand is no longer regarded as sufficient by industry or labor, in the protection of their particular interests. The farmer now realizes that his position is no different and he also must organize.

"It is probably known to most of you that prior to 1900, there were only four fluid milk marketing associations and prior to 1915 there were only fourteen such organizations. The lagging of milk prices during the World War provided incentive for organizing and faced with this problem, the farmers began real cooperative efforts in the marketing of their milk. The impetus of this first movement carried forward until 1925 when good times gave the farmer, as it did all others, a feeling of security. Organization, not being at the time so much needed, was little thought of.

"Depression found the farmer again in need of organization and all must admit that a remarkable effort was put forth at a time when it was much needed. The success of the Bargaining Agency attributes this fact.

"The question in my mind is not that the farmer cannot organize but is rather that he will not stay organized. Like your forefathers of old who rallied at the call of the bugle and organized on the battle field, you still cling to that method. After the battle is won and your cause sustained, you disband and disperse to your home and fireside with a feeling that all is well.

"The recent milk battle after a series of skirmishes both lost and won by the farmers has been a victory and a credit to your organization. I say a credit because it was an outstanding example of Americanism when the organized farmer stood patiently by after the decision of Judge Cooper, without resorting to strike and violance until the orderly procedure of law could sustain their rights. It was a tribute to the strength and temperament of your leadership. However, there has been no permanent terms of peace signed in your behalf. Do not relax your efforts nor disband your forces. Continue to organize for the next battle that is sure to come.

"In sustaining permanent organization, the Dairymen's League has been outstanding. A pioneer in organzing the milk producer, it has remained at all times his standing army, around which members and non-members could rally when the occasion demanded. There has been a personal sacrifice, I know, but the immediate cash returns do not always spell the greatest profit. The feeling that a sound, secure organization stands ready at all times to defend your position is perhaps the greatest reward of all.

The strength of your organization depends upon the quality of your leadership. Good leadership is sometimes purchased at a high price but is it worth it. Effective bargaining consists of getting the highest price for milk that the conditions will warrant. It is a battle of wits to be sure that you send the best ability that your organization can afford. Another point, remember that every group of consequence in this country is now organizing for the purpose of seeing that their interests are protected in the legislative halls. Be sure that you send to the legislature, a man who understands your problems and will fight your cause.

Dairy Show Trip Or Jersey Calf 'Jingle' Prize

New York, N. Y., Aug. 15—Some young dairy-minded poet is going to win a trip to Treasure Island, San Francisco, to attend the 1939 National Dairy Show at the Golden Gate International Exposition, according to the announcement of a "Jersey Jingle" contest sponsored by the American Jersey Cattle Club, national organization of purebred cattle breeders.

Any farm boy or girl under 18 years of age in the United States can participate in the contest which closes September 30. The national winner will be permitted to choose between the all-expense one-week trip to the Pacific Coast event, and a purebred Jersey heifer calf of excellent breeding.

The contest prize fund was set up for the farm boys and girls of the nation by the first Jersey bull calf born at the Dairy World of Tomorrow at the New York World's Fair, according to Lewis W. Morley, executive secretary of the American Jersey Cattle Club. The baby bull, named World Fair Design 400314 in appropriate ceremonies at the fair in June, was given to the Club by his breeders, Wheeler Brothers of Saluda, S. C., with the suggestion that it be used in some project to encourage farm youths to raise purebred cattle of high producing ability. The calf was sold at the National Jersey Sale to Raritan Valley Farm of Sommerville, N. J., and the money was earmarked for the contest.

The object of the "Jersey Jingle" contest is to complete a limerick by filling in the missing line with a rhyme in eight syllables. The incomplete limerick reads:

* * *

The Jersey is the all-star breed,
More cow to milk—less cow to feed,
Efficiently streamlined
To give milk that's creamlined—

* * *

Copies of the official rules and entry form can be obtained by application through local Jersey breeders, calf club leaders and agriculture teachers, or by writing directly to the American Jersey Cattle Club, 324 West 23rd St., New York, N. Y.

Judges in the contest will be three nationally known leaders in the dairy world, Senator Perry B. Gaines of Carrollton, Ky., president of the American Jersey Cattle Club; A. J. Glover, editor of Hoard's Dairyman, Fort Atkinson, Wis., and Ira G. Payne of Albany, N. Y., Jersey judge at the National Dairy Show.

Commissioner Without Power To Fix Milk Prices

Albany, Aug. 14 — Commissioner Holton V. Noyes of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, today issued the following statement:

"Judging from the many telegrams which I have received recently, it is evident that many people think I have the power to fix prices on milk. This, of course, is entirely erroneous. Under the present law, the only prices fixed are those set up under the Federal and State Order. The only way these prices can be changed is through a petition from the Metropolitan Cooperative Milk Producers Bargaining Agency, followed by hearings and a determination that it is favored by at least 75 per cent of the producers.

"Under the old milk control setup, prices were determined by the Commissioner in consultation with an Advisory Committee. That law is no longer in effect, and the Commissioner is entirely without any power to fix the price of milk".

Sunday's much heralded baseball game proved to be a rout for Addison took Caton across 16 to 8 in a game marked by many errors on the part of both teams and a few real honest-to-goodness hits. The Addison Merchants missed the services of Fran Heidrick at shortstop.

That grand old character of sports, Lou Gehrig, was made honorary "Youth Director" of the World's Fair. And speaking of Gehrig, I think you will be interested in a poem written by John Kieran, ace commentator of the New York Times and Information Please star which goes as follows:

—o—

To Lou Gehrig
We've been to the wars together:
We took our foes as they came;
And always you were the leader,
And ever you played the game.

* * *

Idol of cheering millions;
Records are yours by sheaves,
Iron of frame they hailed you,
Decked you with laurel leaves.

But higher than that we hold you
We who have known you best;
Knowing the way you came thru
Every human test.

Let this be a silent token
Of lasting friendships gleam
And all that we've left unspoken;

If I were a farmer I would take every opportunity to better my lot by belonging to farm organizations. I would go on every tour of dairymen, poultrymen or seed groups I could possibly attend, I would belong to farm organizations for an exchange of ideas, I would familiarize myself with the various bulletins put out by the State College of Agriculture at Cornell which are free, I would learn the names of men there doing things in the fields in which I was interested and write to them for counsel and advice.

I would make a job analysis of myself and those who do the farm work to see what is being done. I would keep records on land production, cow production and an inventory of farm equipment. Yes, you say, all this takes time and cannot be done by the small farmer. But I say that is what keeps the small farmer small, not knowing what his costs are, how much he is actually making, what labor costs are and why. Yes, sir, farming is a business.

Knowing nothing about farming, I went on a dairy tour last week and learned plenty. And I noticed that the most successful farmers in the county were there and many of the vicinity farmers, who really needed the information given were absent. That is why they are unsuccessful, to my mind.

Little Six Playoff at Addison Sunday—Two Games Scheduled

The Little Six League will start their playoff at Addison Sunday, August 20. Four teams will be seen in action, the first game starting at 1 P. M., D.S.T. The first game will be Caton vs. Addison and the second game Gang Mills vs. Lindley.

These two games start a three-game series for the semi-finals and the two winning teams will play a five-game series to determine the league cup winner. The cup is being given by Arthur Keeley, sporting goods store of Corning.

Gang Mills, league leaders, are favored to win the league trophy. Addison, last season's league winners, have played a fine brand of ball the last three games and may give Gang Mills a very stiff battle if they enter the final series. Caton and Lindley have been in a slump but are expected to put up a good fight for the cup.

Neysa McMein, nationally famous magazine cover artist acts as judge in the $3.000.00 cash prize contest hunt for the nation's children outstanding for personality and character.

Monday evening, July 31, the 8th Annual National Children's Photograph Contest began. Any child of 14 or under is, eligible to enter simply by having a photograph taken in the photograph studio of the S. F. Iszard store in Elmira. A duplicate picture is automatically submitted to the Board of Judges, who make 392 cash awards on the basis of personality and character as reflected in the photograph.

Store officials state that this is not a "beautiful child" competition in any sense of the word. Because judging is based on personality and character alone, every child has an equal chance.

In the last eight years, over $20,-000.00 has been distributed in cash prizes to children throughout the United States. Last year, thousands upon thousands of children were entered, through leading department store studios from coast to coast. The first prize of $500, awarded by Parents' Magazine, was won last year by Garry Peterson of Akron, Ohio, and the second prize of $100 was won by Alden Chalmer of New York City. Among the other 1938 winners was Patty Ann Wellack of Corning, N. Y.

Besides Miss McMein, other prominent judges are Honore Willsie Morrow, novelist, author of children's books and a mother herself; Tony Sarg, beloved puppeteer and illustrator; Angelo Patri, famous for his penetrating articles on child care and phychology, and a source of inspiration to millions of mothers; Mary Buchanan, editor of Parents' Magazine; and Ralph Ellsworth, art director of the Parents' Magazine. Hundreds of articles have been written about Neysa McMein's spectacular career, but little mention has been made of the other side of her life as wife and mother. In private life she is Mrs. John C. Baragwanath, wife of an eminent mining engineer, and mother of a 14-year-old daughter, Joan. At her home in Port Washington, L. I., she entertains her child's young friends. She says, "I love children. Of course we always have a house full of them out here. Getting to know them so well has given me several very definite ideas about how they can be happy".

"First of all", Miss McMein continues, "I think all children should be brought up to have jobs. We must work to be happy, and early in a child's life talents can be discovered which a mother can encourage and develop, to give real encouragement toward a decision on a career". Little Joan, her own daughter, is very much interested in mathematics and science, and very fond of good music. Neysa McMein believes that children should begin young to listen to good music for the emotional experience of hearing masterfully written classics is character building. "Every child today can hear splendid music, with symphonies on so many radio programs. It is a blessing to which they didn't used to have ready access", Miss McMein states. She believes good manners and thoughtfulness of others is of primary importance to children. "For then", says Miss McMein, "they can get along with everyone all their lives without any trouble. When they can do that, many of the problems they would ordinarily encounter, don't come up".

Bureau Leaders Attend School on Care of Hair

Local leaders representing the different Home Bureau Units in the county will assemble for their first training school on Thursday and Friday, August 24 and 25. The meetings will be in charge of Miss Mildred Carney, clothing specialist from the College of Home Economics, and are to give training in the project on care of the hair. In explaining the purpose of the school, Miss Carney says, that it is designed to help women care for their hair in the most satisfactory and economical way so that they and their families may have good looking, healthy hair.

Miss Carney further explains that we hear a great deal these days about the importance of keeping the hair clean, shiny and well arranged, so that it will truly be a crown of glory. Proper care of the hair not only improves the looks of the hair but also contributes towards its healthy condition.

The leaders' meeting on Thursday, August 24, will be held at the home of Mrs. Seelev Booth, 353 N. Hamilton street, Painted Post. On Friday, August 25, leaders of the western district of the county will meet with Mrs. Clifford Cone on the Almond road out of Hornell. Both meetings will begin promptly at 10:30 E.D.S.T. Special letters to unit leaders will explain the equipment which they will need to bring to the meeting.

This training school on care of the hair heralds the official fall opening of the Home Bureau program. Training schools in other homemaking subjects will be held thruout the fall. Unit programs are not completed and copies which are being made for members will be sent out late in August.

Potato Growers Visit Little Maine Tuesday

The final event of the summer's program of the Steuben County Farm Bureau, the one meeting that is expected to exceed in attendance all others, is the potato tour of Tuesday, August 22.

Beginning promptly at 10 o'clock, the program at the C. D. Wolcott farm on Lent Hill presents the findings of the rotation experiment that has been conducted there under the direction of the college of agriculture. On 100 different plots, five rotations which range all the way from potatoes in continuous production to a five-year rotation, will be presented.

Other points of interest here are the fertilizer experiments and the spacing and rate of planting tests. The answers to many of the problems of potato production in this area are to be found in these experiments

The afternoon will be spent at the farm in Garlinghouse operated by Messrs. Bishop and Harmon, growers and shippers from Caribou Maine, and who have grown this season a crop of 175 acres on farms a few miles north of Atlanta.

The operation includes eighty-five acres each of the Chippewa and Katahdin varieties, smaller amounts of Green Mountain, Smooth Rural and Early Bliss. The Maine methods of production and harvest are to be demonstrated, tractor operated cultivators, diggers and sprayers will be in use during the afternoon.

Anticipating a record attendance, the Farm Bureau potato committee has engaged the services of several potato experts of the state college, and a public address system is to accompany the tour. A basket lunch picnic will be served at noon. The meeting which operates on standard time begins at the Wolcott farm at ten o'clock, at Little Maine at 1:30.

Addison Trims Caton For Little Six Second Place

Winds blew in more than one direction as the Addison Merchants defeated the second place Caton team in a Little Six League game here Sunday afternoon. The visitors were outclassed from the beginning and were snowed under a barrage of Addison hits with catcher Bill Root leading the way with three hits in four times to bat. In spite of the 16 to 8 score, Addison made several errors. The squad also missed the services of Francis Heidrick at shortstop. The team will be handicapped by his absence in the championship playoffs also as he has been ordered to cease all athletic activities on the advice of a physician. This game was the final game of the season in the regular league. The playoffs begin here Sunday.

A series of errors on the part of the visiting Caton players, playing in a windstorm to which they are, or should be acquainted by this time owing to home conditions, enabled many of the Addison runners to score.

One of the features of the game for Addison was a three-base hit by Grange followed by one by Root. And Russ Wade, who has been batting right handed all year and not getting too high a batting average, stepped to the plate left-handed and secured two clean hits. Several wild throws were recorded by Addison and it is possible a change in the lineup will be made to strengthen third base for the coming series games for the league championship, for several errors were made at that spot Sunday.

The score by innings:

Addison	1	5	5	2	0	1	1	0	1	—16
Caton	0	0	2	2	1	0	1	2	0	— 8

Goat Farm

The first stop on the afternoon itinerary was at the goat farm of Don Allen, Wayland, the first goat herd in the United States to be enrolled in a Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Two members of the herd hold national production records and imported Swiss bucks are still in service. One goat holds an international record.

Mr. Allen said he had been interested in goats since he was nine years old and it has become a paying hobby with him. Some members of his imported flock took 14 months to get from their native country to his farm. One of the world's champion sires is in the herd and breeders from Texas, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Missouri and many other states come to the farm.

A milking contest was held with various members of the audience participating. The milk was placed about for sample drinks by those who desired it. Mr. Allen states he feeds the milk to the kids and only sells one quart for a baby in Wayland. He stated that winter weather does not seem to affect them if they are kept out of drafts.

The Edward Wetmiller farm at Patchinville was the final stop on the tour. Here is a herd of 14 Holsteins which produced 11,128 pounds of milk each and 418.8 pounds of butterfat at a feeding cost of 76 cents per hundred pounds for the last fiscal year of the farm.

There are 13 acres seeded to Cornell pasture mixture, grass silage on the farm is put up, soybeans are grown for grain, hay and straw are chopped. Reed canary grass is grown on the farm. A safety bull pen is also part of the farm equipment.

Mr. Wetmiller has been farming here for four years and prior to that was in the dairy business. He has 20 cows and keeps two men occupied full time and one farm hand part time throughout the year. Whey from a nearby creamery is secured to feed hogs. Mr. Wetmiller finds it cheaper to buy soybean oil meal.

He is a member of the Second Steuben Bull Association, as is Mr. Kurtz. He says that on a farm as small as his he cannot afford to keep a bull long enough to get herd records, hence his desire to get into a bull association.

Prof. Serviss here gave a talk on soil and seeds also. He talked about seeding at the present time and stated that with wet cool weather there may be a surprisingly good crop for next year. A good topping of manure was suggested. Recommendations for various soils were made. Mr. Serviss suggested alfalfa for the best soil, alfalfa and timothy for the damp soil, for the average soil a mixture of six of alfalfa and four of alsike and four of timothy and for the average also a mixture of alsike, timothy and red clover, with the result that at least one of them will come through. If lime was used in the spring there is no need for additional lime now.

Prof. Brownell gave a demonstration of throwing a bull for trimming the feet on a bull from the Harlo Atherton farm. Mr. Brownell is a national authority on breeding. He said in part, "Breeding is the most neglected part of farm practice. Only five of every 100 cows in this state have records. Good cows don't just happen. Nor do they come from scrub bulls. You should have cows which in addition to producing good milk can produce good offsprings. We are proving 500 bulls in New York State through Dairy Herd Improvement Associations. Testing is coming into its own.

"Let the Farm Bureau, the college and federal department of agriculture help you. We are interested in you and the problems in your barns and fields."

Prof. Serviss then made a tour of the field with those interested while the bull's feet were being trimmed.

Chemung Fair Plans Gala Meet

With the start of the Chemung County Fair less than two weeks from today, entries are already pouring in to fill the exhibit halls and huge barns to capacity by the time fair week rolls around August 28 to September 2.

Always striving to please fair patrons and the exhibitors, the Chemung County Fair directors have enlarged some departments at the expense of others less popular in the past. This procedure is one of the things which has enabled this larger Southern Tiers' fair to continue for 79 years making it one of the oldest fairs in the east.

Again nearly $15,000 in premiums will be offered in fourteen various classes, including all the products of farm and home as well as schools. The directors have long felt, and it has always been, a purpose of the Chemung County Fair to serve as a show window of agriculture in this section. There is no other institution which so enables rural and urban groups to meet on common grounds and see what each has been doing in the past year.

One of the departments which proved most popular in the past year has been doubled in size for the coming fair, a flower exhibit will use two complete sides of the exhibit hall in the main gate whereas they used only one last year. Also expected to draw a capacity entrance list is the needlework department, which is again hooked up with the National Crochet Bureau. Last year Mrs. Bertha Blodgett of Elmira Heights was one of those who received honorable mention in the National contest. Mrs. Blodgett was a first prize winner in the local fair last year, and will again try for national prizes in needlework. A special display of table settings has been arranged and the directors feel that it will draw much favorable comment for the way in which it is being handled.

BENJAMIN REUNION —

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bruce, Sr., entertained members of the Benjamin Family at the 15th annual reunion held here Sunday. There were about 50 members of the family and friends in attendance at the affair. Charles Clark, Elmira was elected president. The reunion next year will be held in the home of Mrs. Fred Elmer Lindly. Mrs. Vincent Falk was chosen secretary-treasurer for the coming year.

KNOW YOUR LAW

By Carroll E. Mealey, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles

(Editor's Note: Below are presented some questions and answers on the subject of the Vehicle and Traffic Law and rules of the road. Readers are invited to submit questions to Information Service, Bureau of Motor Vehicles, Albany, N. Y.)

* * *

Q. What does the new headlight law require of the operator of a car with regard to meeting and passing approaching vehicles, and with regard to driving in lighted areas?

A. The new law, which went into effect July 1, prohibits the use of the upper beam of headlamps when meeting and passing encoming vehicles and while driving in lighted areas. The operator, in these circumstances, is required to switch to the lower beam. In the case of an approaching vehicle, the switch must be made when the oncoming vehicle is within 500 feet.

* * *

Q. What is meant by "dimming?"

A. The law does not define "dimming". In common usage, the term may mean one of two things: either the use of parking lights or the operation of switching headlamps from the upper to the lower beam. Prior to the advent of multiple beam headlamps, dimming referred to turning off the headlamp beam and switching to "dim" or parking lights. This is dangerous and is not required in modern parctice because use of the lower beam of headlamps should eliminate glare. Use of this lower beam of the headlamps cannot accurately be described as "dimming", however, because the lower beam does not throw less light than the upper beam; it simply tilts the light beam downward.

* * *

Q. What are "parking lights?"

A. Parking lights are the lights on the front of the car required by law to be lighted when the car is parked. These lights, which may be described accurately as "dim" lights, may be in the headlamps, on the cowl or on the fender of your car.

Protecting Tomatoes

C. B. Raymond

Most persons agree that the best tomatoes of the season are the first ones harvested. This is largely because the tomatoes ripen rapidly while the plant is in a vigorous, healthy condition; and the fruits are well protected by the shade of the heavy foliage. These tomatoes often are so heavily protected by the leaves that they are hard to find and become completely vine-ripened before they are seen.

Direct exposure to the sun is not necessary for tomatoes to ripen. In fact, tomatoes will ripen better and taste better if they are not directly exposed to the sunlight, particularly during the warm months of the year. During all of August and the forepart of September, the sun is likely to be so hot that tomaties, directly exposed, will be sun-scalded, or take a hard, yellow, outer wall.

Fruits left on the plants, exposed to the sun, will not ripen any more rapidly, and perhaps not even as rapidly, as those that are left on the same plants where they are protected by the foliage.

The removal of tomato leaves from the plants, beginning soon after the fruits have set, tends to delay maturity, reduce the yield, and make the fruits of poorer quality. Without the leaves, the tomato plant could not develop its fruit, and when any of them are removed, the efficiency of the plant is reduced. Let the leaves protect your tomatoes, they will ripen and taste better.

It took Bill Swift, Pittsburgh Pirates' veteran right-hander, until June to be tuned up for a full-length pitching job, but he made his seasonal debut memorable by shutting out the Boston Bees. The headlines were grabbed that day by Chuck Klein, however, who joined the Buccaneers at noon and scored the winning run after making his first hit as a Pittsburgh outfielder.

Michigan Governor's Simple Life

Steuben Not to Buy Highway Land This Year

The Steuben County Board of Supervisors will not buy land in the vicinity of the Gang Mills viaduct this year as the resolution to make such purchase was tabled at a meeting of the Board of Supervisors held Monday in Bath. The State Highway department suggests that the county purchase this property to enable the curve to be removed from the road on the northside of the viaduct. The owners ask $2,300 for the two pieces of property and the supervisors feel this is alright at this time. They feel that the possibility of construction is remote and hence their hesitancy in purchasing now.

Miss Clara Smith, county treasurer was given another stenographer at a salary of $1200, the money to be taken from the fees received in the office.

A social service worker will be employed temporarily in the Dependent Children's Department with the state department paying the salary. Expenses and mileage will be paid by the county.

New Deal Spending Near End, Says Cole

Bath, Aug. 16—Congressman W. Sterling Cole, who has just returned to his office here from Washington, today declared that the session of Congress just closed marked the end of the "New Deal Honeymoon". For six years, Mr. Cole said, the country has been in the glamor of the "new deal" involving "Planned economy" to give "more abundant life" but the nation has finally come to realize that the glitter of the so-called New Deal lacks the necessary substance for building a permanent prosperity.

"It cannot be said", Mr. Cole continued, "that this was an economy-minded Congress for it approved a series of measures appropriating more than 13 billion dollars for the operation of the federal government until July, 1940, the greatest peace-time appropriation in all history. There was striking evidence of a growing feeling of concern over the state of our national finances, but it was not sufficiently strong to prevent recurrent raids on the treasury for payments and subsidies to specialized groups of citizens.

"The fact that there is some semblance of a change in sentiment, that the Congress is beginning to realize that we cannot spend ourselves into a permanent prosperity is encouraging and I'm confident that after the members of Congress have talked to their home associates, the real rulers of America, that they will return to Washington ready for a genuine move toward retrenchment in national expenditures before our people are bankrupt and before the magnificent credit of these great United States is ruined.

"The most notable measure passed by the Congress was the Hatch 'clean politics' bill which is more drastic and far-reaching than is realized by most persons. The measure is the sequel to a provision adopted by the House at my suggestion during the winter which would cause all persons who receive a bounty or income from the government to refrain from engaging in political activity. The enforcement of this law should have a most wholesale effect on the operation and activities of political parties and will, without doubt, result in a restriction of federal bureaucracy.

"I'm convinced that the people of this nation now realize that the prosperity we covet will never come through mounting national debt but only through a return to sanity in expenditures".

Reviewing Johnny Mize's great performance at bat, for the past three years, it's hard to realize that in 1934 and 1935 he played in less than 70 games and was supposed to be a permanent discard because of a torn muscle in his thigh. It took ten days in a hospital after an operation to send him forth permanently cured and all set for a career as St. Louis Cardinals' first-baseman and one of the greatest hitters in the National League.

How, What and Why

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Mice Are Wary

E. H., asks: "How can we get rid of mice? We have tried different things without success."

Dr. W. J. Hamilton, Jr., of the zoology department answers: "House mice are readily controlled by the use of snap-back traps. The usual difficulty is that too few traps are used. Set at least a half dozen in different places frequented by the mice.

"Bait the traps with pumpkin seed, pie crust or peanut butter. This should soon rid your premises of mice".

Bugs and Ants

Mrs. E. F. F., writes: "We have been troubled with rose bugs or beetles for the past two or three years. What can be done to control them? Also, ants in lawn and flower garden are other pests that need control."

Dr. W. E. Blauvelt of the entomology department replies: The rose bugs or rose chafers are difficult to control where abundant, but they are troublesome only in ar[eas] with light or sandy soil which fav[ors] the grub stage or growth.

The difficulty is that large numbers of the beetles are often present in the area and continually [fly] into the garden for about a mon[th] when the pest is in the beetle stage.

"The beetles can be killed by drenching them with a spray of concentrated solution of pyrethrum extract plant spray, but the protection is temporary as other beetles soon fly in. Sprays of arsenate of lead will protect the foliage, but are objectionable on the blossoms. The most practical way is simply to hand-pick the beetles frequently, knocking them into a pail of hot or cold water with a film of kerosene on top. Any treatment against the grub stage is impractical.

"Information on the control of ants has been sent you in Cornell bulletin E-371 which discusses common insects of the flower garden."

Caponizing Was Demonstrated at Kane Farm Tuesday

Thomas Kane entertained members of the poultry trade and others of the Steuben County Farm Bureau poultry committee at a caponizing demonstration held on the Kane farm Tuesday afternoon. Professor Bottsford of the poultry department of the state college at Cornell University was in charge of the demonstration. About 12 of the men present participated in the work.

Bill Stempfle, farm bureau agent attended the meeting. An electric caponizer was shown and demonstrated but the standard knife method was advocated.

Chickens to be caponized should be of the medium or heavy breeds and about five weeks old for the best results according to Professor Bottsford. The birds grow faster after being caponized and provide a more tender meat that the usual bird and sell for a slightly higher price. It was brought out that there is an increasing demand for caponized birds in this vicinity.

Route 17 Busy According To Highway Survey

Route 17 at Painted Post is the busiest road in the county on the basis of a count made by state highway employes recently. Over a 24 hour period 12,013 cars passed a given point.

One mile east of Addison on Route 17 the count was 1,464 for the same period and on the Addison-Rathbone Road 480 vehicles were counted while on the Addison-Jasper road for the same period 1,437 cars counted by the official checkers.

State Fair Exhibit Promotes Steuben Potatoes

Joining forces with Cayuga and Allegany, the Steuben County Farm Bureau will again as in 1938 persent at the New York State Fair a vast potato exhibit which has for its purpose building better markets for the local crop.

Daily for the duration of the great exposition, potatoes will be graded and packed in 15-pound bags bearing a special State Fair band which will be sold to the retail stores in Syracuse and Central New York.

Tens of thousands of fair visitors will view the exhibit to be impressed with the excellent quality of New York state potatoes and the many health advantages of potatoes in the diet.

The exhibit will occupy a conspicuous space in the Horticultural Building. Steuben county visitors to the State Fair are invited to make the booth their headquarters.

Around Our House

The Youngster's Clothing

A mother has some of her most trying problems in clothing her children when they are from 2 to 6 years of age. This period of rapid growth tests a mother's ingenuity unless she can afford to make frequent replacements of useful but outgrown garments. When choosing or making a dress, a mother should ask herself several questions:

Does the garment allow for growth? Children's clothing should be loose, but not too bulky or too billowy or it will interfere with bending, climbing and riding tricycles. If a dress is well made, is full enough through the chest, has raglan sleeves, a wide long-stitched tuck under the hem, French panties or shorts to match, and is a fast-color material, it will give many months of satisfactory service.

Is the garment made to help the child learn to help himself? Many buttons and button-holes are hard for most young children to manage Even one simple button and button-hole offers a big problem to a youngster, and alternative devices too, may be difficult, such as elastic bands, zippers, metal hinges, tricky buckles and ties. A mother has to decide whether her child can manage the device before she buys the garment. Buttons, when used should be large enough to be easily grasped and pushed, or pulled, thru the button-hole.

Will the garment satisfy the child? Children learn early to prefer certain colors, and wise mothers will let them help to select their clothes. Children then are likely to take better care of their clothing.

Farm Security Board Approves C. E. Rounds

Appointment of the Steuben County Tenant Purchase Committee by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace was announced today by Charles Will, Farm Security Supervisor. Both the county and the county committee were selected with the advice of the State Farm Security Advisory Committee, he explained. Choice of counties was based principally on the farm population, the prevalence of tenancy and the availability of desirable farms.

The members appointed to the County Committee are:

C. E. Rounds of Addison. Mr. Rounds is a Farm Bureau Committeeman and a member of the Grange.

Murray Barnes, veteran Avoca farmer. Mr, Barnes is secretary of the Federal Land Bank, a Farm Bureau Director and a member of the Dairymen's League.

O. K. Sharp of Avoca. Mr. Sharp is operating a dairy and poultry farm in Howard, is a member of the Grange, Farm Bureau and the Dairymen's League.

Charles Will, FSA Supervisor, serves as executive secretary of the committee. William Stempfle, County Agent, whose office is in Bath, is an ex-officio members of the committee.

The responsibility of the committee will be to approve borrowers of Tenant Purchase funds, and the farms that they buy. All farmers in the county who are interested in obtaining such loans are directed to apply to the supervisor.

Loans will be made only to those persons who cannot obtain adequate credit for the purchase of a farm at reasonable terms, from other sources.

"Owing to the limited amount of funds available in Steuben County this year, perference will be given to applicants who have practically enough equipment and livestock to operate their own farms", Mr. Will explained. "In addition to this, the County Committee will choose applicants on the basis of character, ability and experience. Loans are made over a period of forty years at three per cent interest".

In the selection of farmers who will borrow from the 1939-40 appropriation, those whose applications are received prior to August 28, 1939, will receive preference.

Steuben County is one of 1,288 selected in the whole country so far in which loans are being made to farm tenants, sharecroppers and farm laborers under the provisions of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act. Congress has allotted forty million dollars for this purpose this year.

Stuffed Summer Squash

Baked summer squash becomes a special treat when stuffed with creamed ham and green peppers. The New York State College of Home Economics suggests that the round scalloped-edge squash, or cymbling, is particularly adapted to stuffing and baking. Cut the cymbling in half crosswise and remove the seeds. Cook the halves in boiling water for ten minutes and drain them. Fill them with the following, thoroughly mixed together:

½ cup of fine-chopped ham.
1 cup of medium white sauce
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
salt and pepper.

Place the halves on a well-greased baking sheet. Cover the tops with buttered crumbs and bake them for 2 minutes in a moderate oven (about 350-400 degrees F.)

For a lunch or supper menu, the College suggests the following: baked summer squash, fresh vegetable salad, pickled beets, whole wheat bread and butter, cottage pudding with fresh fruit sauce, milk for the children, iced tea, milk or coffee for adults.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

4-H CLUB NEWS

4-H Club members and students of vocational agriculture and home economics are urged to be sure to send in their entry blanks for the Steuben County Fair on or before August 21 to Gertrude C. Bardeen, superintendent, Bath, N. Y.

Entry blanks can be found in the front of each 4-H premium list. Extras, as well as additional copies of the premium list, may be obtained through 4-H Club leaders, 4-H Club agent, teachers of agriculture and home economics or the county fair office by those who, for some reason, do not have them.

Special attention is called to the fact that all cattle exhibited must have a health certificate stating that the entire herd from which the animal comes has been tested for Bangs disease within 60 days of the fair with no reactions or else, showing that the animal is from an approved herd.

Dairy and poultry 4-H Club members should all take part in the dairy and poultry judging contest on Wednesday, September 13, even though, for some reason ,their project may not be exhibited. The fact that the members will participate should be written on the entry blanks.

Horseheads— Charles Saxbury, 2, saved the life of a playmate, Janice Tenny, 15 months old when the latter fell into a garden pool. He did not run away when Janice fell in, but grabbed her by the hair and shouted for help.

Fish and Game Meet Wednesday

Plans for the annual Fish and Game Club outing of September 10 will be made at a meeting to be held at the clubhouse on the McCarthy farm Wednesday night August 23 at 8 o'clock according to an announcement of President Vernon Adsit. At that time reports of the various committees will be presented and final details of various activities worked out.

Over 2,000 persons attended the last field day and an even larger crowd is expected to be attracted to this one owing to the interest in the dog trials to be held throughout the morning and afternoon. This was one of the features of the field day last year.

In addition there will be the annual competitions in trap and skeet shooting, rifle range and other activities. All members are urged to be at Wednesday's meeting.

Addison and Jasper Boy Scouts Advanced At Camp Honor Court

Boy Scouts are to be advanced to Star, Life, Eagle and Eagle Palm Ranks at the Annual Steuben Area Council Camp Gorton Court of Honor according to C. J. Tanner, Chairman, of Hornell. The ceremonies will take place Friday, August 18 at 8 P. M., D.S.T.

Two new features, according to Mr. Tanner, will be the recognition of the parents for all Scouts advanced though, as usual, the Eagle Rank will be the only instance in which parents are privileged to make personal presentations of badge awards; also troop flags and flags of the U. S. A. are to be used as background.

Richard Gladstone of Troop 27, Addison, and Donald Drake, Troop 46, Jasper, have qualified for advancement to Life Rank.

Mrs. Thomas Harden Wins Award at 94

Jacob Rank of 178 North Main street, Perry, won the chair for the oldest man present at the 69th annual Pioneer Picnic, edging out his closest competitor by a margin of over one year at the Thursday meeting. His age was 89 years.

Mrs. Thomas Harden of Addison was the oldest woman present, her 94 years winning the chair without any difficulty.

The usual Pioneer Day showers fell on the old Log Cabin roof at Silver Lake where a handful of only a 100 or so attended the day's ceremonies.

Of particular interest to many of the younger people present was the talk on Scouting by Milton C. Guggenheimer of Buffalo. Mr. Guggenheimer, a patron of the Boy Scouts, gave a very clear view of the aims and objectives of the organization.

Arthur Shock of Eastman Kodak's educational department then showed some movies, portraying the interrelationship of films to public school education.—Perry Herald.

Reductions in Gas Rates Granted

Albany, Aug. 14—The Crystal City Gas Company has filed a revision of gas rates with the Public Service Commission which is estimated to save consumers of the company about $16,000 annually. The Commission permitted the reduced rates to become effective September 1st in the company's territory which includes the city of Corning and villages of Addison, Painted Post, Riverside and South Corning and surrounding towns in Steuben County.

The changes will result in reductions to all customers using in excess of the minimum. The only change made is a reduction in the second block of 3,000 cubic feet from 8 cents per hundred cubic feet to 6½ cents per hundred cubic feet in the rate applicable to Corning, Painted Post, Riverside and South Corning and from 8½ cents per hundred cubic feet to 7 cents per hundred cubic feet in the rate applicable to the town of Erwin. The change will result in reductions beginning at 1100 cubic feet per month and increasing gradually until the monthly consumption reaches 4000 cubic feet at which point, and thereafter, the reduction will be 45 cents per bill.

The revised rate applicable to the City and Town of Corning and the villages of Painted Post, Riverside and South Corning is a minimum monthly charge of 88 cents for the first 1000 cubic feet, 6½ cents per hundred cubic feet for the next 3000 cubic feet, 6 cents per hundred cubic feet for the next 196,000 cubic feet, 4 cents per hundred cubic feet for the next 550,000 cubic feet, 3.1 cents per hundred cubic feet for the next 1,250,000 cubic feet ,and 2.8 cents per hundred cubic feet for all use in excess of 2,000,000 cubic feet per month.

The revised rates applicable to the remainder of the territory which includes the Town of Erwin is a minimum monthly charge of $1.00 or 10 cents per hundred cubic feet for the first 1000 cubic feet, 7 cents per hundred cubic feet for the next 3,000 cubic feet, and 6 cents per hundred cubic feet for all use in excess of 4,000 cubic feet per month.

The company stated that the reduction in rates resulting from the schedules now filed is for the purpose of satisfying a complaint made in a proceeding now before the Commission.

No Vote on Combining Steuben Judgeships

Steuben. Supervisors abandoned the plan to hold a referendum at the fall elections on the proposal to pay $10,000 to a combined surrogate and county judge and $3,600 to a children's court judge. The present plan is for the county judge and county surrogate to receive $5,000 annually each and for the county judge to receive $750 additional for caring for children's court work. The committee of supervisors to prepare the referendum made no recommendation and hence the plan will be dropped.

Wasp Nest in Fuse Box Kills Electric Juice

Mrs. Rose Reilly, Cameron Mills wondered why her electrical gadgets refused to work one day last week. An inspection of lines, lights, wires, cords and the like failed to reveal anything out of order. Tracing the lines back to the switch box they found a wasp nest securely established in the fuse box. Some of the wasps had clogged the system to the extent where no juice could be sent through the lines and a short circuit was set up. Once the trouble was located it was not difficult to remove the cause and electrical gadgets once more worked.

From Farm to Auto Factory

"Well, Ma, while you're finishing up your chores, I guess I'll go over to the north '40' and cultivate that crop for next year's automobile production".

Sounds as if Farmer Jones might be a bit "teched" by the heat of the noonday sun. But don't jump at any hasty conclusions. For such imagined discourse isn't so far-fetched.

Few realize how much of the material in their cars is grown on farms. In recent years a great many industrial uses for farm products have come out of research laboratories, opening up new markets for farmers and adding to their ability to buy the products of industry. Here are just a few examples of the uses General Motors makes of farm products:

Cotton is used in making lacquers, plastics, tires, upholstery, artificial leather, electrical insulation, safety glass, felt.

From corn comes adhesives, textile sizing, alcohol, molded plastics—cornstalks make fiber board.

Sugar cane furnishes alcohol and insulating material.

Flax yields linseed oil for paints, soap and foundry core oil.

Goat hair makes mohair for upholstery.

Hides mean leather for belting, upholstery and many other uses.

And the science of chemurgy—of adapting farm products for industrial use—is still in its infancy. New uses are being developed constantly and the many crops so carefully tended by the nation's more than 6,000,000 farmers promise still more new materials for men to work with, not just to eat or drink or wear.
